

Enterprise Services is committed to limiting the risk of modern slavery occurring within its own business, infiltrating its supply chains or through any other business relationship.

This policy applies to all persons working for or on behalf of Enterprise Services, in any capacity, including employees, directors, contractors, consultants and any other third-party representative.

Enterprise Services expects all who have, or seek to have, a business relationship with the Company to familiarise themselves with this policy and to act in a way that is consistent with its values. We will only do business with organisations who fully comply with this policy, or those who are taking verifiable steps towards compliance.

This policy will be used to underpin and inform any statement on slavery and human trafficking that the Company is required to produce further to the transparency in supply chain requirements of Section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2018.

What Do We Mean by Modern Slavery?

Modern slavery can take many forms; it is a complex and multi-faceted problem. The Modern Slavery Act 2018 covers the following key criminal activities:

- Slavery: where ownership is exercised over an individual
- Servitude: involves the obligation to provide service imposed by coercion
- Forced and compulsory labour: all work or service, not voluntarily performed, which is obtained from an individual under the threat of force or penalty
- Human trafficking: involves arranging or facilitating the travel of another with a view to exploiting them
- The worst form of Child labour: whilst not always illegal in the jurisdiction in which it takes places, child labour involves the employment of children that is exploitative or is likely to be hazardous to or interfere with a child's education, health (including mental health), physical wellbeing or social development.

All forms of modern slavery have in common, the deprivation of a person's liberty by another in order to exploit them for commercial or personal gain and amount to a violation of an individual's fundamental human rights.

Tackling modern slavery requires colleagues to play a part and remain vigilant to the risk in all aspect of the A-Gas business and business relationships.

To underpin the commitments laid out in this policy, Enterprise Services will conduct risk assessments to determine which parts of the business and which supply chains are most at risk from modern slavery so efforts can be focused on the areas that are most 'at risk'. We will engage directly with 'at risk' suppliers in respect of this Policy in order to gain a proper understanding of the measures they have in place to ensure that modern slavery is not occurring within their own businesses. We also make provision for our contracted suppliers to hold their own suppliers to the same standards. We also reserve the right to terminate any contractual arrangement if there is breach of this policy.

Responsibility for this Policy rests with the Directors. A breach of this policy by an employee, director or officer of the Company may lead to disciplinary action being taken in accordance with the Company's Disciplinary Procedure. Serious breaches may be regarded as gross misconduct and can lead to immediate dismissal.
